

| SPORTS OF FIELD AND RING

BROKEN EARS AND A CROOKED NOSE NO ESSENTIAL TO A FIGHTER.

The New Polo League Games to be Played About Dec. 1—Sports Excited Over the Carney-McAuliffe Fight—All Seem to Favor the Englishman—The Seventh Regiment's Games of Great Promise.

OST people say when they see a fighter with big ears and a crooked nose it's safe betting he's not much," remarked a Hoffman House frequenter the other night, "and some with the

"There's another thing that will tell a pool boxer," said a gentleman who overheard this conversation. "Look at his hands. There, where you want to see a pugilist deformed, Billy Edwards's hands remind you of a bag of walnuts when he wears kid gloves."

stood by. "There's Jack Dempsey, no one will deny he is a fighter; yet, Jack's nose is neither Grecian or Roman now. I remember Jack over in the 'Burgh when he had a very pretty nose. One of his ears is little out of shape, too. Jack's hands are knocked out sure enough. I could mention a dozen good pugilists of the present day who have big ears and a dozen more who have not. And of them who like Dempsey and Files and John Fower, all of whom are extra clever mercenaries.

boxed regularly in theatres for any length of time, have swollen ears. It's the way they box in this country now. Fowler never had bad ears till he went to work in Owney Geoghagan's with Frank Williams the Mouse. He soon found the English fashion of straight countering didn't take with American sports. Rubbing the ear with liniment and rest as soon as it commences to be tender are the only preventives. Almost any boxer gets broken hands nowadays. Ever-

The new Polo League's opening games will be played about Dec. 1.

The Twenty-second Regiment's annual athletic games will be held at the Armory on

The fall games of the Seventh Regiment Athletic Association, which will be held in the great armory on Saturday, Dec. 4, promise to be the best of the season. The Seventh ranks with the New York Athletic Club in getting up first-class entertainments.

The Carney-McAuliffe match is turning sporting centres upside down. What an upset it would be if McAuliffe should win! The World's sporting editor remains uncovered

It was offered on Carney against $800 McAuliffe. Very little betting is going on about this mill, as it is looked on as a certainly for the Englishman, not by men who have read about his performances, but by those who saw him beat Jimmy Mitchell, at Philadelphia. Pat Rail, who is now proprietor of Billy Bennett's old place, secured one bet of $70 yesterday on the Brooklyn box, but he had to pay $100 on Car-to catch it. One mistake people are making and that is the McAuliffe is either afraid of the Briton or not capable of giving him a tremendous battle. Jack got out of training once because running on hard roads swelled his groins, and he wouldn't have had a show to win. Twice before he failed to make matches with Carney, not because he feared him, but because he couldn't get backing at the weight. McAuliffe is in prime fix now, and ought to make a better ten or twelve pounds above his real fighting weight. It will be a great fight, and if Carney isn't at the top notch, or if he leaves any openings, McAuliffe will surprise people as the Marine people were astonished by the other Williamsburger. Carney has the experience, but McAuliffe has youth, two or three pounds the best of the weight and three quarters of an inch in height on his side.

A Chicago physician has a collection of several hundred bullets which he extracted from the bodies of Union soldiers, who were shot during the war.

The death of their young, much as they love and cherish the living. They frequently follow funeral with merrymaking.

The Greek church at Sitka, Alaska³ is one of the wealthiest in the world, its treasure consisting for the greater part in old paintings of the saints set in frames of gold and silver. One picture, a present from the czar, is valued at $40,000. The massive doors of the church are heavily inlaid with

A correspondent who recently visited Belleville, Ill., writes that it seemed to him as if he were in a city of Germany. Out of a population of 19,000 he did not see a dozen Americans, and the manners and customs of the people were those of the fatherland. Beer is almost exclusively the beverage of the town, and even the dogs looked as if they had been brought up on it.

Tumen Noye, the son of a prominent citizen of Ashkosh, Wis., disappeared from here some time ago, and nothing was heard from him until last night, when he was seen flying through the sky above the city. He was seen at mid-day. When first seen it looked like a big locomotive headlight dashing through the space, but as it reached a point directly above the city it seemed to pause for a moment and then was shot upward like a column of fire. It finally broke up in a blaze of splendor.

Charles Gollister, of Unionville, Mo., was born twelve years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence and is consequently 112 years old. He is quite spry for his age and retains the use of most of his faculties. He was Miss Ida Moeses, of Old Orchard, Me., was badly injured in the hip while coasting last winter, and the doctors said that she would be crippled for life. But while attending a faith-cure meeting not long ago she suddenly threw down her crutches, shouted out that she was cured, and began to walk without assistance. Since that

1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem or issue that needs to be addressed. This involves gathering information and understanding the context of the problem.